the situation. He explained at the subject property there was a ‘lagoon-type’ of an area that was experiencing a lot of tidal action lately that washed out the north end of that particular lagoon. Council was provided photographs of the subject site that revealed the erosion and showed how close the water was getting to nearby buildings. He reported that he and staff held communications on several occasions with the residents of Leonardo Arms, and he asked Environmental Science Coordinator Laakkonen to contact the State to determine what could be done about the situation. He stated that after speaking with the DEP it was learned the Town had the option to issue a “Declaration of Local Shoreline Emergency” that would enable the Town to issue a permit for temporary protective measures that the DEP would accept for a period of 60 days; (i.e. sandbags to help keep the erosion further). He noted Leonardo Arms could not do anything permanent at this time; they could come back and request an extension; and during this period Leonardo Arms could determine with the DEP what could be done on a more permanent basis. He added that Leonardo Arms would need an engineered plan of what they would plan to do.
